SEX ART AND ROCK & ROLL

This wham bam thank you ma'am musical is set in the gritty, glamorous 1980's. It is based on the life and music of Canadian Rock Icon Carole Pope whose band Rough Trade provided a soundtrack for the rebellious, activist artists fighting to shake off the rigid sexual and political constraints of the time. The story centers on Pope's life and relationship her brother Howie, who moved to New York in pursuit of rock n' roll, sexual freedom and a new life. He lands in the middle of the AIDs crisis, becomes a founding member of queer activist group ACT UP, and tragically sacrifices his life for love.

THE MUSIC OF ROUGH TRADE

Their attitude was their calling card. They questioned authority, They oozed sexuality. All sexualities. Rough Trade was a trailblazing, politically charged, punk-inspired New Wave rock band. It was formed in Toronto in 1975 by multi-instrumentalist Kevan Staples and Manchester-born, Scarborough-raised vocalist Carole Pope. Notorious for the openly sexual nature of their songs and the burlesque theatricality of their live performances — which often included bondage and sexual satire — the band was one of the first mainstream musical acts to include explicitly gay and lesbian references. They enjoyed critical and commercial success in the early 1980s and won four Juno Awards before disbanding in 1986. Rough Trade was inducted into the the Canadian Music Week Indy Hall of Fame in 2007, Canadian Songwriters Hall of Fame in 2020 and the Canadian Walk of Fame in 2023.

AHEAD OF ITS TIME

As part of the post-punk new wave of the 1980's Rough Trade created a brand of avant-garde highbrow performance art fused with rock n' roll.

IMPACTFUL

GenX'ers and millennials claim that Rough Trade's fearless style gave them the courage and pride to come out to themselves and their families as queer.

ICONIC

Carole was proudly out on National television, flaunting her sexuality at every turn.

INTOXICATINGLY '80s

The hit songs that are the source material for the arrangements carry bright synth sounds and hypnotic beats combined with killer guitar licks straight from the 80's with powerful rock vocals.

SEXART & ROCK N ROLL

The setting is Toronto and New York during the AIDS pandemic of the 1980s. Our musical examines the intersection of art and activism, and the role we play in remembering ones we lost while advancing the causes they cared about the most. The story is personal. It's true. And it happened to one of Canada's most recognized rock stars.

The residual pain left by the AIDS crisis, lives and friends and artists lost, is something that contemporary theater audiences have started to grapple with through plays like The Inheritance, Angels in America and a few other dramas. This musical now invites audiences to see the connections between the frenetic art, music and activism of the 1980s to the experiences of our current post-pandemic world. The music, the style and energy of the 1980s inspired people to come together, act up, and create movements to heal the world.

THE 80'S DESIGN & EXPERIENCE

is also a visual experience drawing heavily on the wild nightclub scene of the 1980's. Clubs meshed performance art, political commentary and the bright pop visuals that defined the decade.

From Keith Haring to Basquiat to Zette to General Idea to Yoko Ono, artists crossed boundaries, disciplines and media to create immersive worlds that swept you away. Our design team is creating an energetic ever-changing landscape of iconic looks for the musical numbers.

THE AIDS CRISIS

When AIDS first hit North America, there was a crisis of inaction regarding medical research, making drugs accessible and addressing the severe homophobia, violence and social isolation that LGBTQ+ people with AIDS faced. An army of queer citizens calling themselves ACT UP organized rallies, protests, information sessions, peer-to-peer counseling, fundraisers and media campaigns to force the powers that be into action. Howard Pope was a founding member of ACTUP/ THE ACTUP MOVEMENT

SYNOPSIS

Meet the two Caroles.

As the musical opens, we meet present day Carole, “Millennium Carole” who is backstage waiting to be inducted into the Songwriter’s Hall of Fame and give a concert of her hits. She is visited in the dressing room by her brother Howard. Is he a ghost? A memory? Carole starts telling him about a recurring dream she has about him and is whisked back in time to the mid 1980s by “Agit Prop”, a stage turning movement based trio of performers in outlandish costumes based on the performance artists of the 80s. The bulk of the play takes place as she revisits, comments on and experiences her own life, Christmas Carol style. Sometimes she tries to call out to her younger self, “80’s Carole” to change the story.

Howard gets wild in New York.

With Millennium Carole as our guide, we see Howard, a young aspiring musician in his own right decide to follow in his sister’s footsteps, move to New York and get involved in the Rock scene. He falls in with a group of hip East Village performers, artists and activists and joins Buzz Fuzz, a crazy new wave band led by the charismatic, androgynous Buzz who is secretly (or not-so-secretly in love with Howie.) They play hilarious gigs in outlandish costumes.

Howard’s life criss-crosses with his sister, 80’s Carole’s constant touring and gigging and rock star life. They witness each other’s lives, talk on the phone, leave messages, meet up at drug fueled parties as Millennium Carole watches from the wings. As the AIDS pandemic starts to take over news headlines, Buzz’s lesbian roommates Desiree and Inez start organizing rallies and meetings to support their friends through these terrifying times. Howard friend-zones Buzz and meets Jude, a promiscuous scene queen who steals Howie’s heart. Carole immediately doesn’t like the guy, and the New York friends barely tolerate him. Howard has a wild green card wedding to Desiree.

AIDS strikes close to home

When Jude gets diagnosed with HIV, Howard finds himself joining Desiree and Inez and spearheading the formation of 80s gay activist group ACTUP. At the AMFAR rally in Montreal, Jude tells Howie that if he really loved him he would have sex with him, unprotected. Out of communal guilt, fear, desperation, Howie does, and is soon diagnosed with HIV. Jude dumps him shortly after. When Howie informs 80s Carole of this, she is filled with anguish and regret that she maybe could have, should have, would have done something to prevent this toxic relationship.

San Francisco and connections missed

Howard moves to San Francisco to work with some queer organizations serving children and families and 80s Carole questions whether she should stop performing altogether and just go care for him there. Howard insists that she doesn't and promises to come play guitar with her on the next West Coast leg of Rough Trade's tour. While Carole is on the road, Howard gets ill, and decides to throw himself a gay prom slash living memorial party where all his friends gather to celebrate his life. He passes away while Carole is on a flight to San Francisco, and she arrives to find him gone. For the first time in the play, Millenium Carole and 80s Carole speak to each other directly and sing a tribute song to Howard about all the things they had yet to do with each other. As the stage spins, the cast re-enter in present day clothes and join the two Caroles on stage for a concert version of High School Confidential (one of Rough Trade's biggest hits.) Howard runs onstage and joyously plays guitar as memory and present day collide for the finale.
